Now, that everything's been said and done And now, we've reached the point of no return I know I tried and I gave my best I must admit that I didn't pass the test It's not from you, I can now expect To understand my point of view Only the lonely will know How I feel about it Only the lonely will show Some kindness and compassion Only the lonely will grow If somebody mends their hearts If somebody mends their souls You tell me I'm the one to blame You say You say we did not expect the same I know I tried and I gave my best I must admit that I didn't pass the test It's not from you, I can now expect To understand my point of view Only the lonely will know How I feel about it Only the lonely will show Some kindness and compassion Only the lonely will grow If somebody mends their hearts If somebody mends their souls Only the lonely man will know My feelings Only the lonely man will show Compassion Only the lonely will know And show Some kindness and compassion Only the lonely will grow If somebody mends their hearts If somebody mends their souls
