I saw the tears of your mother at an early age Your father had raped for another son You lived an anonymous life Hidden eyes, hidden face, hidden soul People did not want to see Traditions can be changed Dreams and wishes faded away You were not allowed Feeling light, feeling love, feeling free Lady Ella, you had no idea What the fire Married to an older man One you didn't know You were still a child No time to grow Locked up behind a door No one helped, no one heard, no one cared You feel pity and you hurt too You pray to God and ask Believe me and forgive me For I can't obey You cut into the night Losing faith, losing hope, losing dreams Lady Ella, you had no tears Lady Ella, pain so stronger than your fears Lady Ella, no love, no tired The only way out was the fire Now they stand beside your grave Underneath decay But for you, Lady Ella Even today Lady Ella, pain so stronger than your fears Lady Ella, no love, no tired
